EarthFest 2010

40th Earth Day Anniversary Edition

This is a call to all Earthlings in South Florida: Come celebrate Earth, the Greater Everglades Bioregion, and the possibility of choosing a sustainable future for all in South Florida!

Sunday, April 18th 2010 – Noon to Sundown - Crandon Park Visitors' & Nature Center, Key Biscayne

Free admission / $6 parking fee at Crandon Public Transportation via Metrorail Station & "B" Bus

Free Bike Valet provided by Green Mobility Network

Why celebrate EarthFest? We live in a world that seems to be breaking down in so many ways...it becomes overwhelming...people feel powerless to make a positive difference. EarthFest will communicate a positive and empowering message that each and every one of us has the ability to bring about a more sustainable world through our everyday actions and personal choices.

What makes EarthFest unique? EarthFest proposes to inspire a community-wide discussion and a much needed cultural learning process. The event will showcase artists whose work expresses consistent messages of sustainability, interdependence, peace, unity, compassion, and action towards positive change.

When and where will it take place?

Sunday April 18th 2010 from Noon to Sundown at the North Beach Entrance of Crandon Park: 6767 Crandon Boulevard, Key Biscayne, Fl. 33149.
